Headline:
Sunshine for many, showers in the north.

Today:
A good deal of dry and sunny weather across the country today but scattered, and at times wintry, showers will affect the north and northeast. Feeling cold.

Tonight:
Some showers will linger in the north but elsewhere there will be largely clear skies, leading to a cold, frosty night.

Saturday:
Tomorrow will be a similar day with wintry showers in the north but dry and bright weather elsewhere. Into the afternoon showers will start to die off in the west.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
A lot of dry weather over the coming days with light winds but with a few wintry showers at times in the east. Overnight frosts expected.
